CONTRIBUTION RELEASE FORM

Terms & conditions

The Field Photography Collective (hereinafter FPC) offers persons working in peace, security and development or related fields (hereinafter the contributor) the possibility to submit photos and text (hereinafter the contribution/material) for publication on its website as well as - Facebook and Instagram. In order for FPC to protect the rights of contributors, third parties as well as ensure transparency, all contributors must agree to the terms stated herein.

1. Responsibility of contributors: FPC provide the infrastructure for the publication of third-party contributions and are therefore not liable for content submitted for publication on the FPC website. By submitting content, the contributor allows FPC to potentially publish and disseminate the contribution. In order for FPC to be able to publish a contributor's work all photos must be taken by the contributor. The Contributor must also ensure that they have the right to publish the content submitted to FPC.

By submitting photos and text the contributor agrees and confirms that:

- The material does not infringe the copyrights and usage rights of third parties. A contributor may only transfer contributions to which they have exclusive copyright or the sole and comprehensive right of use.
- The material does not violate the personal rights of third parties. Persons depicted on the photos must have expressly agreed to the publication, unless statutory exceptions apply.
- The material does not contain any advertising.
- The material is not of pornographic nature, liable to corrupt minors, racist, offensive, defamatory or otherwise illegal. Content of pornographic or defamatory nature will not be considered.

FPC reserves the right to review and edit all submitted content. FPC further reserves the right to erase any content on our website or flag content on social media outlets if deemed inappropriate.

2. Copyright/Right of Use: By submitting the contribution, FPC is thereby granted the right to use digital photographs and text, partially or in full, as well as the contributor's name and likeness. The right of use includes the worldwide unlimited right to copy, distribute and make publicly available some of the material for FPC to publish on social media platforms such as Facebook and Instagram in order to promote the FPC and its contributors. The right of use is granted free of charge.

The right of use may be revoked by the contributor at any time. FPC will then immediately take technical precautions to terminate the use. Even if the individual work cannot usually be called up directly anymore, FPC ask for your understanding that the works may still be visible in different contexts.

3. Violation of Third-Party Rights: If third parties assert the violation of their rights through content submitted to and published by FPC then FPC will initiate a complaint procedure. This entails immediate notification to the relevant contributor. Any claims asserted by third parties due to the infringements of rights based on your contributions must thus be handled directly by the contributor.

3.1 Complaint procedure: When a third party asserts the infringement of its rights due to content published on the FPC website, FPC will first notify the contributor. Content under scrutiny will temporarily be hidden from the website. If the infringement claims are not resolved within 30 days, the content will be deleted permanently. Otherwise the blocking of the objected contents will be lifted.

FPC does reserve the right to proceed immediately with deleting objected content even in the event of an infringement of rights that is not clearly identifiable.

4. Data backup: FPC does not commit to backing up any contributions submitted. FPC is therefore not liable for any loss of data.

5. Legal: Any disputes arising in relation to this agreement must primarily be handled between the parties. Swedish law will apply.
